A RECENT issue of the Shen. Pao recalls an spisode in the ancient history of Chiun, and draws an analogy between it and the rile now bring played by Russia in her dealings with this country. At the period referred to, China was in a state of clines, on account of the coaseless and bloody endeavours made by every principality of which the Empire was composed, to subdue the others, and assume sway over the whole land. One of the smallest and weakest of those principalities, a little place called Zee, eventually was raised to this proud position by the eraft of its refers. They made friends with the more powerful states, and as soon as they did, proceeded to conquer those that were weaker than Zee, without danger of being interfered with by her bigger neighbours. By and by when she had grown powerful by annoxing those inferior powers, she was able to cope successfully with the states she had fawned upon in the days of her proverty and insignificance, until at last she became the leading principality China. The Shea Pagsays that this is what Russia is trying to do, and has succeeded in effecting to a great extent. But in het last attempt to absorb a weaker power, that is, whon she lately tried to conquer Turkey, the other European Powers stepped is and prevented her. Since then she has been busy making friends with those powers, and hones whom she tries again in another direction, that is when she swoops on Ohina, those powers will not interfere with her. But the Shen I'do hopes that the various states of Europe will not sit still and let Russia acquire any further possessions in Asia, where she already has considerable footing, for where she had sucneeded in over ronning China, she would simply turn round and laugh at those that permitted her to do so. - Shanghai Mer-

THE CONFERENCE AGAIN.

The late 'conference' of steam slupow iers has already been provocative of much ill-feeling between the merchants and their carriers, and we have had the previous action by a firm which had, originally been i the remaining members for alleged conspiracy. Our legal report this week gives the facts and judgment in an action which has occurred amongst the Conference, penple themselves, and again shows how well the natute original promoters have played their cards ever since the formation of the or four days 19 hours. This means a ring in 1879. Though we have mover admired the principles on which the Conbrence was based, now that it is all over one cannot fail to be struck with the way it was engineered, and how recessful the promoters nere in drawing their own brethren into it, much, we believe there is no secret in stating, to the chagrin of many slapowners. Few of the companies beyond the Ocean Steamship Company, we imagine, selves on the final autcome. and the Ocean Steamship Company itself, as soon tributions have been inconveniently numerous, no the amount distributed so large as sorvice on the ship until the 4th November, to materially increase the profit and loss account of any brin.
